Reviewer 1 Comments :

Dear Author,

Thank you for your submission. Below are a few comments to help improve your paper:

1. Clarify the novelty of the proposed lightweight model by explicitly contrasting it with existing transformer-based and rule-based systems in legal judgment prediction.

2. Strengthen the problem statement by adding empirical evidence on Indian court data heterogeneity and its impact on current AI model performance.
3. Improve methodological rigor by detailing dataset characteristics, preprocessing rules, and experimental settings to ensure reproducibility.
4. Provide deeper error analysis and case-level examples showing where the proposed model succeeds or fails compared to more complex architectures.
5. Enhance the discussion by presenting quantitative comparison tables, computational-cost analysis, and ablation studies for TF-IDF and Logistic Regression.
6. Expand the conclusion with clearer limitations and concrete future work directions, especially regarding scalability, explainability, and integration into judicial workflows.

Reviewer 2 Comments :

Thank you for your submission. Your paper's subject is engaging and well-defined, and I find the overall impression favourable. However, several key areas need to be addressed before I can recommend your manuscript for publication:

1. All the images used in the paper must be good quality.
2. All the tables must be in an editable format
3. All the equations written (if any) must be written using the math editor
4. Kindly refer to some of the latest research papers for the years 2023,2024 & 2025.
5. Include the paper's contribution in bulleted form in the introduction section.
6. The proposed methodology must be explained well.
7. The paper must be within 10-12 pages
8. Include a section detailing how your study benefits society, highlighting your research's practical impact and relevance.

Final Paper Preparation Guidelines

Please carefully incorporate the reviewers' suggestions and follow the mandatory quality requirements before mailing or uploading the final CRC:

1. Reduce Plagiarism (Including AI-Generated Text): Ensure similarity is below 15%, verified using licensed software like Turnitin or iThenticate.
2. High-Quality Figures and Tables: Replace all low-resolution screenshots with clear, labeled, and original images.
3. Equations: Number all equations and ensure they are typed, not inserted as images. Include references for any borrowed formulas.
4. Referencing Style: Follow the specified referencing format (e.g., IEEE) consistently throughout the paper.
5. References: Include at least 15 or more relevant and recent references.
6. Figure/Table Numbering: Ensure proper numbering and descriptive captions for all figures and tables.
7. Author Information: Verify all author names, affiliations, and email addresses are accurate and complete.
8. Ethical Writing: Avoid AI-generated or fabricated content. Any detected "AI plagiarism" may lead to Springer rejection or post-publication retraction.

9. Citations: Include self-citations only when truly relevant and justified. Unethical citation practices may trigger future content integrity checks.
10. Dataset and Source Verification: Properly cite datasets, ensuring they are ethically obtained and verified from credible sources.
11. AI Reference Caution: Do not use AI tools (e.g., ChatGPT) to generate references or citations, as they may produce incorrect or non-existent entries.
12. Mentor Review: Student authors must have their manuscripts reviewed by their supervisors or mentors before submission.
13. General Advice: These instructions aim to promote research integrity and awareness, not to restrict your creativity. Following conventional and ethical writing methods ensures your work remains safe from retraction or future integrity concerns.

With Best Regards
